

Community Access National Network Board of Directors

Jeff Bloom Bio

A long-term survivor of AIDS, Jeff Bloom is a volunteer AIDS Patient Advocate since retiring in August of 1994 from permanently disabling complications from HIV infection of the spinal cord. Currently Mr. Bloom serves on the Founding Board of Directors of TIICANN - The Title II Community AIDS National Network and is active in numerous Congressional and FDA events and activities. Mr. Bloom is also an active member of The Patients and Consumers Coalition - a broad based Coalition of groups that advocates for positive change at the FDA. Mr. Bloom served as the patient representative on the FDA Antiviral Drug Advisory Committee and will be serving as the patient representative with the FDA Anesthetic & Life Support Advisory Committee. He also assisted the FDA in developing, planning and implementing a FDA workshop for patient representatives.
