

Community Access National Network Board of Directors

Valerie Volpe

Valerie Volpe has worked in the pharmaceutical industry for the past three decades with focus on stakeholder relationships. Her work focuses on partnering with key health care leaders on policy and access issues affecting the areas of infectious disease, cardiovascular disease, diabetes, oncology, neurology and women's health.

She had her own consulting business in Connecticut before coming to Washington, DC in 1995. She also worked for various pharmaceutical and biotech companies and serves on the Board of CANN in Washington, DC.

She did her undergraduate studies at College of New Rochelle in biology. She also has certificates in Leadership and Organizational Management from Yale University and from the University of Maryland.